ABSTRACT

For seven consecutive semesters, questionnaires were administered to the students enrolled in Illinois Central College's human sexuality course to determine their sexual experience, practices, and orientation. The surveys also sought to assess the students' attitudes toward homosexuality, pornography, masturbation, extramarital relations, abortion, premarital sex, birth control, and the importance of sexual compatibility in marriage. The study's findings, which were based on the responses of the 205 course enrollees, were admittedly not generalizable to the total student population. The study revealed that: (1) about 5% of the males and females felt sexual attraction to persons of the same sex; (2) 75% of the males and 84% of the females had engaged in oral sex; (3) 42% of the married men and 32% of the married women had had extramarital relations; (4) 20% more females than males used a method of birth control; (5) oral contraceptives were the most popular form of birth control; and (6) 27% of the females had been pregnant while unmarried and 30% of the males had partners who had been pregnant while unmarried. The survey also revealed that men were more conservative than women with regard to homosexuality, the effects of pornography, masturbation, and abortion, while women were more conservative about the availability of pornography and extramarital relations. Psychology 193, Human Sexuality, is team-taught as a continuing education course. As indicated by the accompanying syllabus, the course addresses itself such topics as: cross-cultural and historical views of human sexuality, gender role and identity, contemporary sexual behavior, anatomy and physiology, sexual response cycle, venereal disease, contraception, abortion, dysfunction and sexual variation. Except for the first semester, the course has been offered during the evening.

Over the past seven semesters, the 205 students enrolled in this course were given an anonymous questionnaire to fill out during the first class of the semester, which covered their sexual experiences and attitudes.

Data was compiled and compared for males vs. females and marrieds vs. singles. The sample is unlikely to approach randomness. We believe our students tend to be more sexually liberal and experienced than other students at our college.

I. Some general characteristics of our students are as follows:

- 1) Females outnumber males 2:1 and have done so consistently in all our classes.
- 2) The average age of our students is similar to the average age of community college students -- mid-twenties.
- 3) Married/single ratio - 40/60. (This is ever-married vs. never-married).
- 4) About 5% of our students -- male or female -- indicated a sexual attraction to people of the same sex. However, more than twice as many males as females have had any homosexual contact and twice as much homosexual contact as occurred among married people as compared to single.
- 5) Oral sexual behavior seems to be a widely practiced form of sexual expression.
- 6) Adultery occurred in about 42% of the married men and about 32% of the married females.

- 7) The use of birth control is about 20% higher for females vs. males and 30% higher among marrieds as compared to singles. More than one-third of the single respondents said they do not use any form of birth control, but only 10% of the sample is not sexually active.
- 8) Birth control pills are still the most popular form of contraception by far. Lagging far behind are condoms, foam and withdrawal.
- 9) More than one-third of the sample has been involved in a pregnancy outside of marriage; 2/3 of those pregnancies resulted in abortions.

II. Attitudes

Although in most individual classes, there were some noticeable differences on certain items in the married/single comparisons, these differences failed to appear when averaged for the total sample.

In the male/female comparisons, males are more conservative than females on the following items:

- 1) Questions regarding the role of homosexuals in society.
- 2) Pornography as a threat to society.
- 3) Masturbation as a normal behavior among married people.
- 4) Abortion as a special case, i.e., rape, etc.

Women are more conservative than males on these items:

- 1) The availability of pornography.
- 2) Adultery.
- 3) The importance of sexual compatibility on the success of a marriage.

In our opinion, the data is notable by its lack of discrepancy, in general, of attitudes of males vs. females and married vs. single. A random sample of a community college population would probably be more diverse in its attitudes.
